Tell my current partner I'm bisexual? [2]

Dear Alice,

I am a bisexual woman who is dealing with my sexuality... sort of. I'm still a virgin in both instances, but I know I'm attracted to both sexes. I'm currently in a (new) relationship with a guy, and for some reason, we've never really gotten around to asking questions about each other, health conditions, near death experiences, sexual history, etc. Should I tell him I've had girlfriends before? Even if there wasn't any sex? Is it my responsibility to tell him or is this information on a privileged basis only??

How do I tell my girlfriend I'm sterile? [4]

Dear Alice,

I am an 18-year-old male. And I lost my ability to reproduce in a bull riding accident at a rodeo I competed in about two years ago. I would like to father children more than anything. And now I have a girlfriend who is talking of wanting to have kids in the future. But I can't bring myself to tell her that I can't because I still haven't dealt with the problem of coping with it myself. I need to know how to deal with the fact I cannot have kids, especially now that my significant other wants them, but is ignorant to the fact that I am sterile. Please help me ASAP! This is tearing me apart.

Bridesmaid worries: Will groom be a no-show? [5]

Dear Alice,

My sister-in-law is scheduled to be married this spring. At the church rehearsal last Saturday, the "groom-to-be" showed up an hour and 40 minutes late, and then did not want to practice. He has been making comments to his friends that he does not want to get married. Do you think he is just getting cold feet, or do you think it's more than that? We are afraid he just won't show up at the church. My sister-in-law seems oblivious to all of this, or else she tries to explain away his remarks. Should we be more forceful in trying to get them to sit down and really talk this out, or just show up at the church and hope for the best?

Signed, Anxious Bridesmaid

Dear Alice,

I read the info on molluscum in the Men's Health section. Are there any signs that distinguish molluscum from genital warts/any way to tell if you have one or the other?
